PERSONAL STATEMENT

Passionate about to change the way how people perceive designing as an additional entity and not as an asset. My perspective towards fashion is that it is over-rated as meant for the rich which is what gives me the desire to change the thought process and work for an industry where growth and outreach of fashion and textile products is the mission. Learning has always been my key motive, and I have always wanted to work at places where the learning and personal growth as a designer and as an individual is at an exponential rate.

Now looking for an amazing work environment with an individual designer or a firm that works on textile products and solve the real life problem of making fashion more innovative and accessible. Learning is going to be the key objective, along with amazing work with the team and beating deadlines and pushing my own and the employee's boundaries on the achievements at work.
